Board members were reassured that when offenders in this category are housed, checks and research into the location are carried out. Risk Management Plans are put in place based on the history and potential to re-offend. This is agreed through Multi Agency Public Protection Arrangements. Police decide on the locations which are safe and manageable and monitor individuals on a regular basis.  Offenders who are not on the register have no restrictions. Background checks are completed on individuals and families and takes into account previous tenancy, known history, probation and police checks.
