Introduction

Welcome to the Children and Young People's Plan for Derby. This Plan has been produced by the Children and Young People's Partnership; a partnership that has been formed to improve the lives of children and young people in our city.

This plan sets out the vision of the Partnership for children and young people together with the objectives and the key challenges we face in making a real difference to the lives of Derby's children and young people. The plan also says what the Partnership proposes to do about these key challenges and how it will test whether we are making a difference.

Putting this plan together has been an important step in developing the Children and Young People's Partnership. It will support the Partnership organisations and staff to provide services to children and young people that are better able to meet their needs, by working to a clear set of priorities. Importantly, the plan will support organisations to work together to meet the needs of children and young people and families. By deciding together what is most important and how best to respond as a partnership, we will improve our ability to support our children and young people to gain the very best from their childhood.

This plan and the priorities within it have been drawn up following a huge amount of discussion within the Partnership organisations and wide ranging consultation with children and young people, parents and carers. There has been a real attempt to include as many people as possible and listen to their views. The Children and Young People's Partnership sees participation as a high priority. We are keen to continue to discuss the issues in the plan over the coming two years.

These discussions will strengthen the Partnership over time and improve our ability to make a difference.

Derby - A City of Growth and Diversity

Derby is a city in the heart of Derbyshire. With a population of 233,200 people, it is a city of contrasts combining bustling commercial areas, prosperous industry with tranquil parkland and a wonderful mix of different cultures. The city covers an area totalling 77.7 square kilometres and dates back to prehistoric times. It's the starting point of the Derwent Valley Mills World Heritage Site and home to international companies such as Rolls Royce, Royal Crown Derby and Toyota.

Located in the heart of the county it has developed into a thriving multi-cultural city. Derby has a rich mix of people, cultures, art and religion that present both opportunities and challenges for the Children and Young People's Partnership. The last census tells us that 12.6% of people living in the city are from a black and minority ethnic background. Over 50 languages are spoken in the city. Since 2001 this diversity has been further enhanced by the arrival of new asylum seekers and refugees from a range of countries. Still more recently, a pattern of new arrivals from the European Union Accession States appears to be emerging. This presents further challenges for service providers across the city

Derby is a prosperous city but there are a number of significant challenges and these impact on the lives of children and young people:

- ◆ The unemployment rate is 4%. This is slightly higher than the East Midlands rate of 3.3% and the national rate of 3.4%.
- ◆ In Derby, 15,900 children and young people live in households who claim income support. This is 8.76% of the child population of the city.
- ◆ There are four areas where the birth weight of babies is 10% lower than the average birth weight for the city.
- ◆ In one area men and women are likely to die 6 years younger than the city average. These broad challenges set a context for the specific work of the Children and Young People's Partnership.

The Children and Young People's Partnership are concerned with the 52,000 children and young people under the age of 18 living in Derby, together with an estimated additional 3,140 young people aged 18-19. Our aim is to support all children and young people within the city to get the best from their childhood.

To do this we will make sure that the services all children and young people receive are of the highest standard that we can possibly achieve. The services all children and young people receive, such as education, are called level one services. The majority of children and young people in our city grow into adults supported by loving, caring families and level one services alone.

Some children and young people become vulnerable and at times need extra help. So, at the same time we need to work to make sure that these children, young people and their families get the extra help they need as quickly as possible. This could be a Sure Start programme, providing parenting and health advice or perhaps a Personal Adviser from Connexions or behaviour support in school. These services are called level two services.

Some children and young people will however experience a greater level of difficulty and need more help. These children and young people, along with their families need a lot of extra support, for example from Family Support Workers, Pupil Referral Unit or mental health teams, or the Community Paediatric Service or the Substance

Misuse Service. These services are called level three services.

Lastly, there are very small number of children and young people who are in crisis and need intensive help and support to be safe and receive proper care. These children and young people may need to be “looked after” by foster carers or in a residential unit.

They may need intensive support for their offending behaviour from the Youth Offending Partnership or require urgent help and support from the Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service or from the Specialist Community Children's Services. These services are called level four services. The chart on the next page shows the four different levels of need and services together with some facts about Derby children and young people.

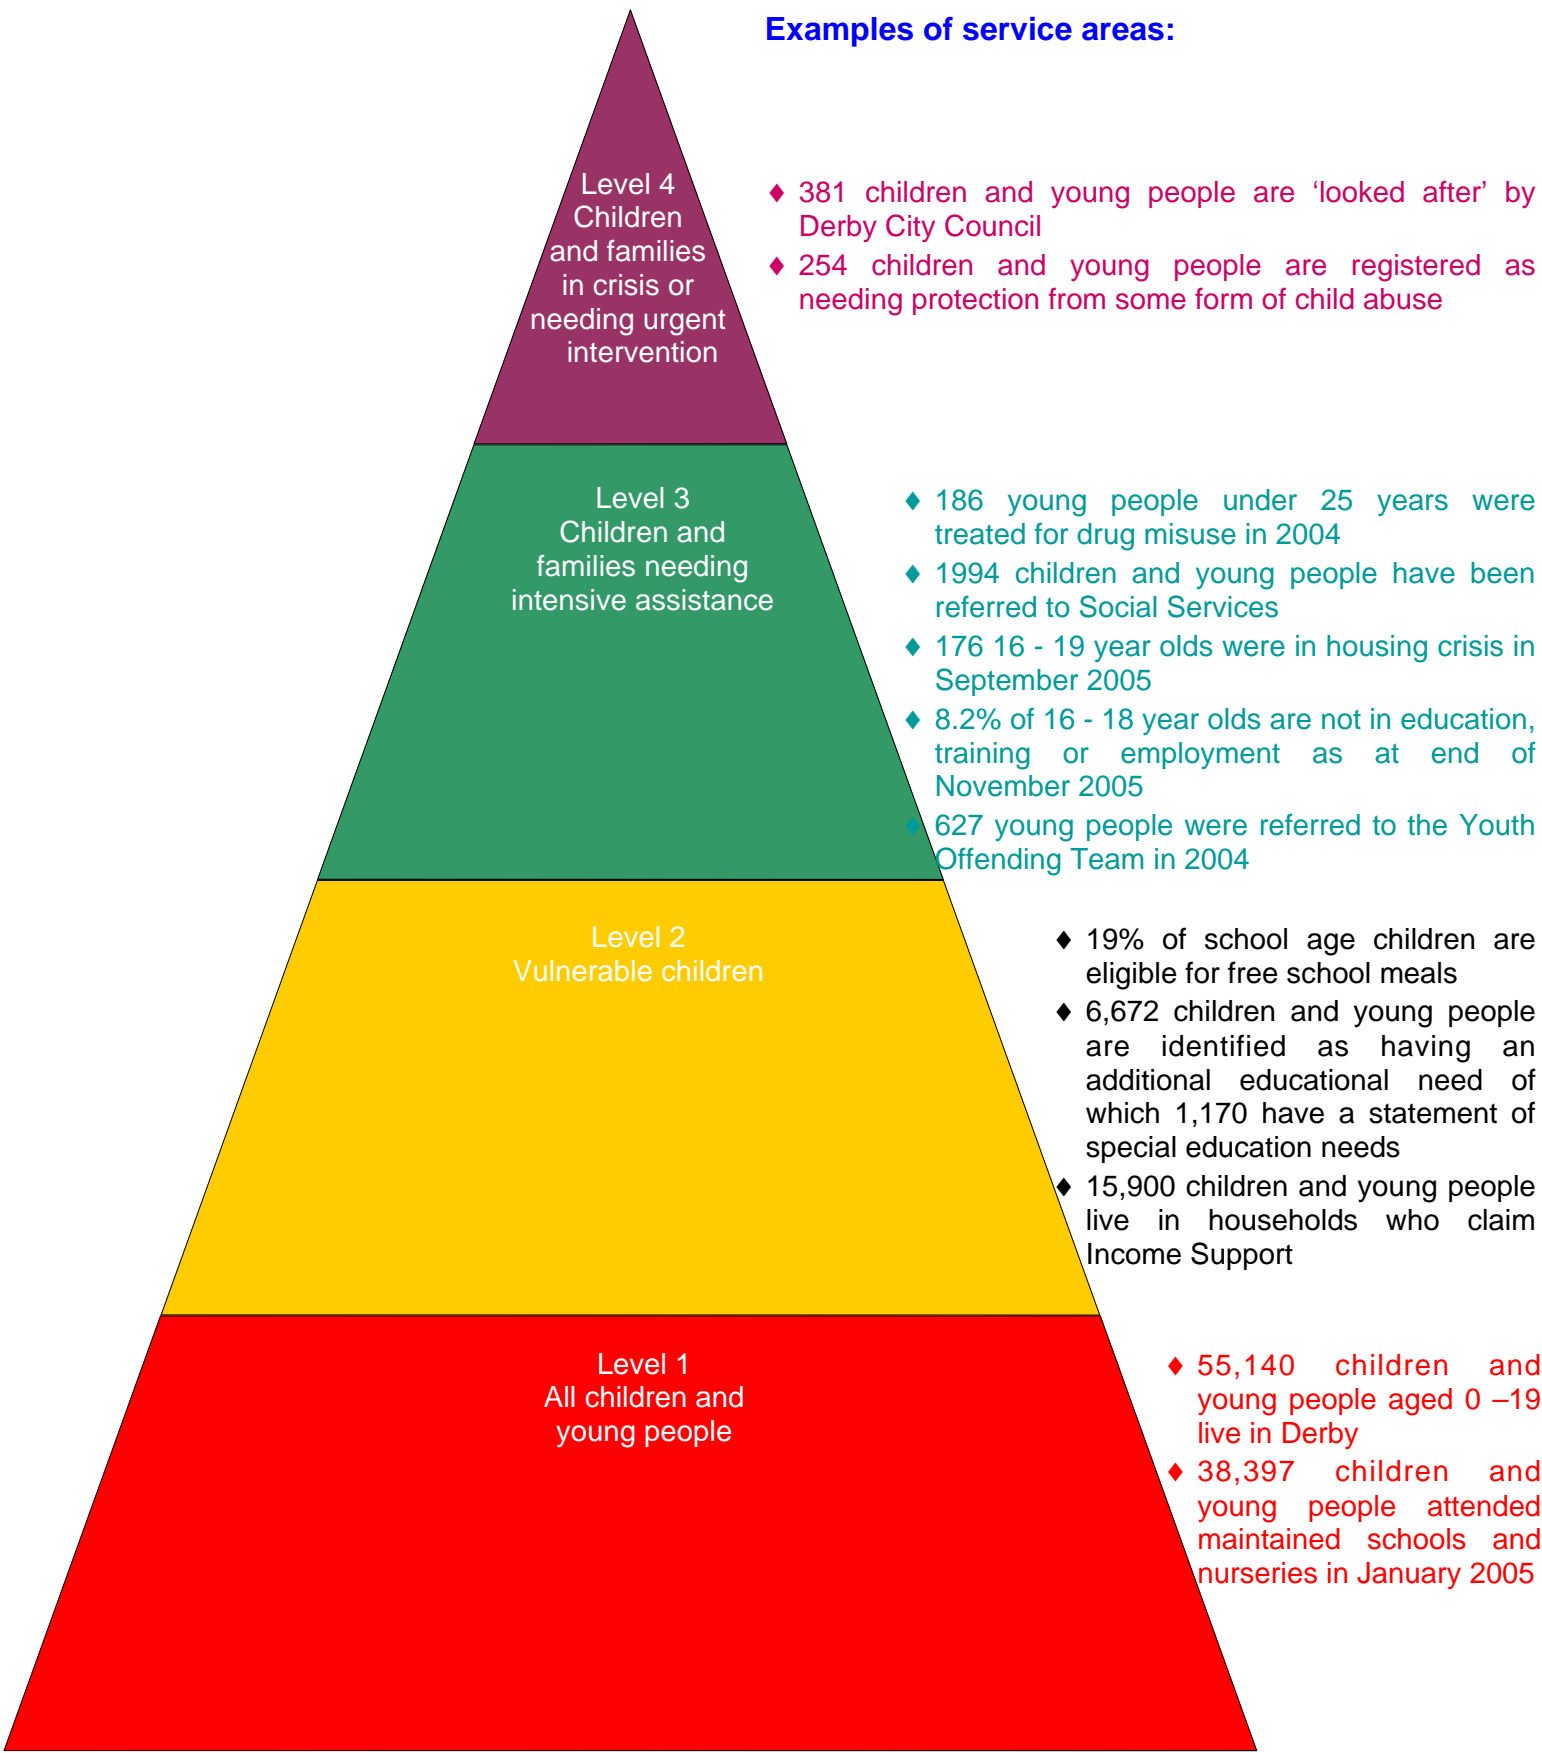

As a Partnership we know that children and young people who have additional needs are likely to do better if they get help quickly. Our aim is to support as many children and young people as early as possible, so that their difficulties are resolved and they no longer need extra help. Early support also gives children, young people and their families the best chance of preventing difficulties from getting worse. Some children and young people though need progressively more help and move up the service levels. Here too, our aim as a Partnership is to support them so that they need less help as time goes on. As the Partnership develops we want to be able to support more children and young people successfully at the lower levels of service and therefore a decreasing number of children at higher service levels. This is called shifting from intervention to prevention services.

The Children and Young People's Partnership estimate conservatively that there are 10,000 people in the city working in either a paid or voluntary capacity with children, young people and their families, many working in the following areas:

- ◆ Derby City Council, a unitary authority with all council services coming from a single organisation including social care services; education services; sport and leisure services
- ◆ There are 350 voluntary organisations registered with the Council for Voluntary Service (CVS) in Derby that provide services to children and young people
- ◆ There are two primary care trusts, 36 GP surgeries providing local primary health care and three hospitals; the children's Hospital; the City Hospital and the Derbyshire Royal Infirmary
- ◆ There are 107 schools across the city; 78 primary schools; 14 secondary schools of which 12 have enhanced resource provision for pupils with special needs; 5 special schools; 8 nursery schools and 1 pupil referral unit
- ◆ Derbyshire Police has 3 policing areas in the city; Merrill; Pear Tree and Derby North
- ◆ There is a Connexions Service for young people providing information, advice, guidance and support for young people aged 13-19 years olds
- ◆ The Youth Offending Service providing support and supervision to young people who have offended or at risk of offending.

The Children and Young People's Partnership

The Children's Trust arrangements for Derby

The inquiry that looked into the tragic death of Victoria Climbié found that a difference could have been made to her life if the agencies that are involved in providing services to children and young people had worked together well. New legislation for children, the Children Act 2004, requires that partnerships are established to make clear arrangements to work well together to improve children and young people's lives.

This law demands that Councils with children's services responsibilities work with partner organisations to establish clear arrangements to work together to make sure that children and young people in their area are well supported. Sometimes these arrangements are called children's trusts; in Derby we call them the Children and Young People's Partnership.

The Children and Young People's Strategic Partnership was started in 2002 and is chaired by the Corporate Director for Children and Young People, Andrew Flack. This is a Council appointment and the Director is accountable to the Lead Member for Children and Young People and the Council Cabinet. This is because the Children Act gives to all Children's Services Authorities, in our case Derby City Council, the responsibility to appoint a Director for Children and Young People. The Director also has a responsibility to the Partnership. This Partnership is working to improve the way services are provided to meet children and young people's needs.

There is a Children and Young People's Partnership Executive which is made up of senior officers from the Primary Care Trusts; Connexions, Derby City Council, Community Safety Partnership, the Police; the Hospital Trust; the Mental Health Trust and representatives from the Voluntary Sector. Importantly, four young people are also members of the Partnership Executive. The Partnership is more than this though, and a whole range of groups are working as part of the partnership to make sure that agencies are working together to improve children and young people's lives. The different groups are shown in the planning bookcase on page 38 and include children and young people's groups; parent's groups, a staff group, a head teachers' group and a voluntary sector network group.

Vision and Objectives

Building a shared vision for children and young people in Derby is important if the Partnership is to make a difference for children and young people. Creating a shared purpose will lay the best foundation for building positive relationships that are essential to change the way services are provided for the better.

Children and young people are our future and they only get one chance to grow up. We must set our sights high to make sure that we listen to their aspirations and support them in achieving their potential. As a Partnership we will work together to provide high quality services that minimise the chances of children and young people being affected by poverty; abuse and neglect; educational failure; poor health; crime; ignorance and substance misuse.

Our shared vision:
Derby Children and Young People's Partnership has a commitment to;

Building a brighter future for children and young people that provides a healthy, safe and happy childhood, with the opportunity to achieve their full potential.

Our commitment as a Partnership is to work together with children, young people and their families and communities to make Derby a place where children and young people:

- ◆ live in safe, secure communities and are protected from abuse, harassment and neglect
- ◆ are valued and encouraged to make a positive contribution in their homes, schools and communities
- ◆ are encouraged to realise their aspirations, dreams and talents and experience success in learning
- ◆ know how and where to get help if they need it
- ◆ benefit from a range of services where they are needed that share a common understanding and work together to plan and deliver a service
- ◆ are given the best opportunity to lead healthy, enjoyable and fulfilling lives.

Children and young people across the country were asked about what mattered most to them and they identified five key outcomes that they wanted from their childhood. The new Children Act places a duty on Derby's partnership to deliver these objectives:

Being Healthy: enjoying good physical and mental health and living a healthy lifestyle

Staying safe: being protected from harm and neglect

Enjoying and achieving: getting the most out of learning and life, and developing skills for adulthood

Making a positive contribution: being involved with the community and society and not engaging in anti-social or offending behaviour

Economic well-being: not being prevented by economic disadvantage from achieving their potential.

These objectives are about achieving good outcomes for children. The Partnership has a second set of objectives that are about helping to make this happen:

Developing the Partnership: building relationships based on a shared vision that supports agencies to work together well

Participation: to ensure that the Partnership involves children, young people, parents and carers as well as the full range of organisations involved in providing services

Shifting from intervention to prevention: changing the shape of services over time so that more children and young people with additional needs can be supported quickly

Improving access and narrowing the gaps: providing services that are equally available on the basis of need and responsive to disability, race, culture and religion. Working to narrow the gap between the services available and the needs of children, young people and families

Developing the workforce: supporting staff to make the changes that will help them to work well with colleagues from other organisations and join services up for children, young people and their families.

Derby's Strengths, Areas for Improvements and Needs

There is much for our city to be proud of in terms of the quality of services and how these services actively involve children and their families in planning and development.

♦ Needs analysis and comparative data

We have also examined the level of service that are currently provided and the needs of children and young people in the city and compared it with national data.
